Dear Kevin,

It has been a few months since we last met and you presented the findings of our all-alumni survey to various members of our community. The survey affirmed much of what we do, but has also inspired us to consider what we can do better for our current students and alumni. It affirmed that our alumni, in the main, viewed their Roxbury Latin experience as a positive one and they hold dear the lessons they were taught as adolescent boys. The results you painstakingly compiled also have sparked great discussion in our Alumni/Development Office about the ways in which we can better engage our alumni base. For example, we have already been brainstorming about our approach with younger alumni and keeping them connected to alma mater.

We had never given our alumni an opportunity to provide feedback to the school via such a comprehensive survey about their student experience and their preparation for life beyond their years with us. The way in which you dissected the data has enabled us to have fruitful conversations with many different constituencies at the school. You presented the material in a manner that was easily accessible, and we still have not sifted through all of the data. We are excited about spending more time digesting the results this summer.

We enjoyed working with you on this project, and I would be glad to speak with anyone who was thinking about generating an alumni survey with you. You were thorough in your work and committed to making sure that we were satisfied with the project from beginning to end.

Thanks again!

Sincerely,

Thomas R. Guden
Director of Development
